Bruce Stamp - Wood Sculpture

As a boy growing up in Minnesota, the “Land of 10,000 Lakes”, I spent my summers building wooden boats to travel from one shore to another.

With the discovery of various types of woods, I soon found my interest leaning toward more artistic uses and began to carve birds which I observed along the shore. Later, as an adult resident of Morro Bay California, I was inspired by the natural beauty of the Central Coast and captivated by the diversity of shore birds and marine life. It was here where I launched my career and began to perfect the process of sculpting instead of carving.

Today I still live by the water, albeit a small lake in Atascadero California where pelicans, swans, herons, egrets, and mallards fly in year round, and finches, blue jays, orioles and hummingbirds visit the feeders regularly. I continue to work in the medium I enjoy, sharing my sculptures with collectors across the United States.
